LANE SHIFT ON EASTBOUND I-4 BETWEEN PAR STREET AND FAIRBANKS AVENUE

NEW TEMPORARY CONFIGURATION WILL SHIFT EASTBOUND INTERSTATE 4 (I-4) AUXILIARY LANE

As soon as the morning of December 8, the eastbound I-4 auxiliary lane between Par Street and Fairbanks Avenue will transition from the mainline of eastbound I-4 to the newly constructed elevated travel lanes. These new travel lanes are currently serving as the eastbound I-4 exit and entrance ramps between Colonial Drive (State Road 50) and Lee Road (State Road 423). The auxiliary lane is meant to give motorists a safe distance to merge to and from eastbound I-4. By shifting the auxiliary lane to the new travel lanes, it maintains the same number of travel lanes on I-4. The purpose of this temporary configuration is to create more room to construct permanent eastbound I-4 lanes and accommodate future traffic shifts. The lane shift will require a one-night closure of the eastbound I-4 exit ramp to Fairbanks Avenue from 9 p.m. on December 7 until 5 a.m. on December 8 (see reverse for detour route).
